What a boring day! I was totally disappointed. I thought it would be fun. Even lessons at school are more exciting than the trip was. Can you believe that?

First of all, we didn't have any group activities. When we arrived, everyone just played in small groups. What a waste! We missed a wonderful opportunity for playing exciting games like campfire and hide-and-seek.

And I'm not at all interested in sports. That's why I didn't join my friends playing badminton. I just sat down alone, and watched them play. And I soon became the 'target' of the flies.

Worse still, it was a very hot day. The sun was shining so brightly that I kept sweating.

The worst thing of all was I forgot to bring my camera. I could not even walk around and take photos of the beautiful scenery.

Questions:

1. Did Joseph like the trip?
2. What did he want to do first?
3. What did he actually do on the trip?
4. What sport didn't he like to do with friends?
5. What were the two things he did on the trip?
6. What was the weather like?
7. What was the worse thing he met?
8. What was the worst thing he met?
9. What were the things he could not do?
10. Where would you like to go for a school trip?

Fantastic! I enjoyed the trip very much. It's so much more interesting than the lessons at school.

Guess what I liked most about the trip? It was the fresh air! It was really refreshing. Now that the air pollution is so serious in the city, we can breathe fresh air only in the countryside.

Besides that, I enjoyed playing badminton with my friends. I thought there would be group activities on the trip. But it was great that there weren't any. I was just not very interested in group activities.

The sun was quite warm that day. So we decided to walk around and admire the spectacular scenery around us. Flowers were blooming everywhere. It was so amazing. We took some photos, too.

If I have the opportunity, I will certainly join this activity again next year.

Questions:

1. What did Stephanie like most about the trip?
2. Why did she like the fresh air?
3. What did She enjoy doing?
4. Are there any group activities on the trip?
5. Was she interested in group activities?
6. What was the weather like?
7. What did she do on the trip?
8. What did she see there?
9. Does she want to join this activity again?
10. Where would you like to go for a school trip?

Hi William,

I'm flying to London tonight to meet my best friend Rita. She's meeting me at the airport. We will first visit Buckingham Palace and then she will take me to the train station. Of course we're not taking a train at the station like Harry Potter. Actually, we're catching a train to Cambridge. We're going to visit Cambridge University. I guess we'll have a good time seeing their Geology Museum as both of us are fascinated by rocks. We're also going to tour Windsor Castle the next day. We haven't yet planned where to go after that. I'll send you a postcard to let you know our whereabouts later.

No matter where I go afterwards, I am sure to buy you some souvenirs. I know that you like drinking tea. Let me get you some English tea. Please go to my home and take care of my dog Bobby from time to time to make sure he is alright. I will be back no later than 25th July.

Bye for now. Take care!

Vivian

Dear Maria,

I have no classes today. I'm shopping along one of the busiest streets in this capital city. It's lunchtime and I'm enjoying soup in a noodle shop. I'm lucky because I've a table by the window. It's quite cold and windy in Beijing at this time of the year. It's raining outside, but I'm not worried – I have an umbrella with me. Everyone is in a hurry to get shelter. Buses, cars and bicycles are moving up and down the street quite slowly. Inside the shop, there are two women sitting and speaking Cantonese at the table behind me. They remind me of you.

I'm doing well at school and can now use simple Putonghua to give my order in restaurants. I'm having a great time here. Most of my lessons are in the morning and I usually work in the library in the afternoon.

I hope that you're well and happy. Are you busy preparing for the Chinese New Year? I really miss your mother-in-law's sweet rice cakes. Please write soon. I enjoy your letters with news from Hong Kong. Please give my regards to Tom and the kids.

Miss you,

Carmen

My hobby is playing chess – the greatest game in the world. My mum taught me how to play when I was seven years old. She beat me every time for the first year. But then, on my eighth birthday, I won for the first time. I nearly always beat her now.

It takes about a day to learn the rules. But if you want to be good, you have to practice for years. You don't need much to play chess – just a chess set and someone to play with. Chess sets can be quite cheap, or incredibly expensive. Some people collect chess sets as a hobby, but I prefer to play.

There is a chess club in our school. We meet twice every week to play each other. I am the best player in the club, and the captain of the school chess team. This year we won All England Schools' Championship, and I had to go up on stage in front of the whole school to collect the trophy.

I'm saving up my money to buy a chess computer. They are very expensive, but also very good for practice. That way I'll always have someone to play with. One day I want to be the world chess.

Questions:

1. What is Sam's hobby?
2. Who taught him to play chess?
3. How old did he beat his mum for the first time?
4. How long does it take to learn the rules of playing chess?
5. What do you need to play chess?
6. Is there a chess club in Sam's school? How often do they meet to play each other?
7. What Championship did they win this year?
8. Is Sam the best player in the school chess team?
9. Does Sam have a chess computer?
10. What does Sam want to be in the future?

Around the Clock

Over the last few years, more and more Internet bars, cafes and fast food shops in Hong Kong have chosen to stay open around the clock. Just as in 24-hour convenience (便利) stores, you can have food and drinks there any time you like. They are good places not only for food lovers, but also for diligent students, video game players or even homeless people.

During examination periods, it is not hard to see groups of students burying their heads in piles of books and notes in fast food shops. They think the study environment (環境) in a fast food shop or a cafe is better than their home or a library. 'I like to study in a fast food shop with my classmates because it's not as strict as a library. We can't talk freely or eat in a library. But in a fast food shop, we can discuss our homework and have something to eat when we are hungry,' said Tom, a Secondary Five student.

In a very different frame of mind, fans of video games gather at 24-hour fast food shops to play video games. With their PSP or NDS in hand, they can make virtual (虛擬的) connections to other players and challenge each other. Some of them become friends and meet up almost every night at fast food shops. 'My son used to go to Internet cafes to play online games. Now, he goes to fast food shops to play PSP with others. Sometimes, he stays there overnight because it is free of charge, and he doesn't come home until seven o'clock in the morning!' a mother said angrily.

However, there is a less desirable (合意的) reason for staying overnight in fast food shops. In Hong Kong, and even in cities as prosperous (繁榮的) as those of Japan, 24-hour fast food shops have become shelters (栖身處) for homeless people. People can sleep there overnight even if they do not spend a single dollar in the shop. 24-hour fast food shops have become the paradise of homeless people.

With more and more 24-hour restaurants, the sleeping hours of some Hong Kong people must be getting shorter. Some people upset their biological (生理上的) clock and turn fast food shops into their second home. No matter how convenient 24-hour restaurants are, we really should look after our bodies better and lead a healthy and balanced life.
